The Program

Morley Senior High School's unique specialist program offers successful applicants the opportunity to develop or enhance their skills in areas of interactive game design, web design, photography as well as audio-visual editing and production. The program affords the students the platform for linking traditional art skills into modern television and multimedia contexts whilst exploring, creating and analysing a range of media forms.

The School of Screen and Media is the only specialist high school program in Western Australia through which students are able to regularly create and broadcast their own television information programs to a broader audience. This highly regarded program requires a minimum four year commitment from all participants and ultimately all students who successfully pursue this course to Year 12 level will gain one of the nationally accredited industry qualifications in screen and media listed here:

CUA31115 Certificate III in Screen and Media (RTO 50638 Morley SHS)
CUA20115 Certificate II in Creative Industries (RTO 50638 Morley SHS)

The People

The specially selected screen and media students are taught and trained by our highly qualified teachers all with an extensive background and experience in the media and arts industries. All staff are not only accredited teachers but also hold current Australian industry qualifications and maintain regular liaison with relevant industry partners and networks to continually improve the program and expose our students the very latest and best in industry practice.

The Talent

Over a considerable period of time the Morley SHS screen and media program has been the launch pad of many successful careers. The school boasts a significant number of current and former high profile television journalists, camera operators, radio producers, graphic designers, production managers and photographers amongst its graduates. Their careers have not only spanned the creative industry but also the popular TV networks to include Channel 9, Channel 10 and the ABC and such names as Jeremy Fernandez (ABC) and Michael Tetlow (Channel 9 and 10, and the ABC).

The Facilities

All students of the School of Screen and Media enjoy the air conditioned premises of our dedicated “state of the art” media and arts complex. These facilities include the a fully operational television studio equipped with the very latest in control room and audio-visual editing technology. The adjoining purpose built multi-media and photography facilities complement this with the latest in graphics and digital editing technology.
